When raised within an abusive household from a young age, children believe abusive behaviors are normal. Thus was the case with one of the students disclosing after our prevention program last fall. Understanding that no one has the right to hurt or touch private spaces without her consent allowed her to understand that she had been abused. Her report is one of over 100 that occurred either in a school or in association with the prevention program.

"I saw a presentation at school that told me what happened was wrong."

We're here to provide support for survivors ready to disclose their abuse and find help.

As the designated neutral home for investigations in the counties of Gibson, Knox, Perry, Pike, Posey, Spencer, Vanderburgh and Warrick Counties, we promote justice by allowing victims to report freely in their own time and language, in our friendly and welcoming center.

Above all, we prevent abuse before it begins through our primary prevention program in local schools.

The Holly's House Board and Advisory Board work to build capacity, sustain growth and ensure excellent services for each survivor.
